

PERFECTLY LOCATED

Located in Camarillo on land owned by the County of Ventura, Growing Works is perfectly situated adjacent to supportive housing for behavioral health clients and close to our associate partner, California State University, Channel Islands.

MODEL OF SUSTAINABILITY

With plant sales, job training services, and contributions from our supporters, Growing Works is based on a thriving and sustainable business model. As a non-profit working nursery, Growing Works will fulfill an ever-present local need to provide high quality, drought-tolerant California native and Mediterranean plants and succulents to our clients and partners.

MENTAL WELLNESS AND JOBS

Modeled after the successful program at Growing Grounds Farm in San Luis Obispo, Growing Works Nursery brings job training and a safe working environment to people with mental health challenges, including veterans with Post Traumatic Stress.

Growing Works employees work in a supervised setting that rewards responsibility and initiative and strengthens social skills. While physical and at times demanding, working outdoors and with plants has proven to significantly contribute to recovery. With a combination of horticultural therapy and vocational training, employees are provided a path to mental wellness and job placement in the workforce.
